Ouagadougou renewable energy growth

Overview

Ouagadougou, Burkina Faso's bustling capital, is witnessing a solar revolution as photovoltaic (PV) panel prices decline dramatically. This price phase-out creates new opportunities for households, businesses, and agricultural projects to adopt clean energy solutions. Let's explore how this trend. A sun-drenched city where solar panels glint like disco balls, but the real magic happens when the sun goes down. The initiative seeks to provide electricity to over 150,000 households, improve education and healthcare access, and reduce reliance on costly. Nowadays, more than 80% of the energy used in the world comes from fossil fuel deposits (coal, oil, gas) or uranium, formed over time in good agreement with geological evolution [1]. In 2017, non-renewable energy resources constituted nearly 86% of global energy demand and 48% of African energy.
