Photovoltaic panels free installation scam

GRADE A BATTERY

LiFePO<sub>4</sub> battery will not burn when overcharged over discharged, overcurrent or short circuit and can withstand high temperatures without decomposition.

Overview

---

If you've received an offer for "free solar panels," it could be a scam. Always look for businesses you can trust - like Accredited Businesses using the BBB Seal. Someone contacts you through email, phone, social media, or even in person pretending to be a solar company. Con artists use misleading sales tactics and lies to trick homeowners out of money and personal information. The scams vary, but here's the gist: someone claiming to be with the government or your utility company promises big savings on your utility bills from solar energy. Find a solar panel installer today! We've all been sent scammy emails and they'll slip through because it looks much more official than it is. Steer clear of any emails, social media posts or pop-ups that boast unlikely amenities and freebies. These might include free solar panels, sales ending. The Department of Energy (DOE) and the Solar Energy Technologies Office want to set the record straight: there are no federal programs that provide free home solar panel installations. Sunlight is one of the most widely available resources on the planet.
