

The free installation scam of photovoltaic panels revealed

Overview

If you've received an offer for "free solar panels," it could be a scam. Always look for businesses you can trust - like Accredited Businesses using the BBB Seal. Someone contacts you through email, phone, social media, or even in person pretending to be a solar company. Con artists use misleading sales tactics and lies to trick homeowners out of money and personal information. Someone contacts you. Did a salesperson knock on your door and promise free rooftop solar panels at no cost to you?

Or say you'll never have to pay another electricity bill because government programs, grants, or rebates cover your solar installation?

It's likely a scam. The Department of Energy (DOE) and the Solar Energy Technologies Office want to set the record straight: there are no federal programs that provide free home solar panel installations. The criminals are leaving unsuspecting homeowners with massive debt; many victims have reported losing tens of thousands of dollars. The big lie: The total cost of the project will. The Inflation Reduction Act was passed in 2022, and you should read about its clauses and specifics if you're thinking about committing to solar power.
